

Hi, I'm Fiona Miller CEO of ON-FOCUS, a disability service on the Far North Coast of NSW. Our organisation provides Day Programs and Accommodation support to people with a disability.

Over the last few years we have worked closely with UNE developing this degree particularly around the units of study and the professional experience.

The linking of special education and disability studies is very exciting. Within the disability sector a number of Service Providers (including ON-FOCUS) have been aiming to create an industry of professional workers that look at the whole of people's lives.

Knowing that UNE's Bachelor of Special Education (Primary) / Bachelor of Disability Studies creates opportunity for multiple career paths within the industry and educates people in a whole of life approach to people with a disability is fantastic.
