

We have a Republish This Article option on all our articles. This means you can republish our articles for free under a Creative Commons License 4.0 subject to following our guidelines. This might be in newsletters for educators, support workers, your stakeholders or parents. This is similar to the one used by The Conversation and EduResearch Matters.

You do not have permission to change or remove any of the text, including the byline and bios. You can seek permission from individual authors to edit.

Guidelines for republishing

By republishing our article, you are agreeing to the following guidelines.

Our republishing guidelines

1. Credit the author and their institution.
2. Link to the edition of the newsletter the article came from.
3. Credit UNE School of Education Research Newsletter and link to our home page using this link <https://bit.ly/SoEresearchnews>
4. Do not edit the article unless you obtain approval from the author.
5. Our available articles cannot be sold but can be republished on a page containing advertisements.
6. You will need to use your own images, unless the images belong to the author of the article. Royalty free images can be published, but you will need to check the licence is still current.